RETROSPECT.

Nine years ago in February we first asked the patronage of the Washington public in a store on Market Space 25x100 feet. To-day we have a large fivestory building containing over 50,000 feet of selling space. Then we employed about fifty assistants, to-day we have about 350. Then we had one delivery wagon, to-day we have seven.

Your patronage has been the lever with which the store has been raised to its present position. The cardinal principles upon which we established our business, and upon which it has prospered, are: "Equity, liberality, one price, best intrinsic values, and money refunded to all dissatisfied purchasers" - and these principles will be conscientiously adhered to in the future.

Standing upon the threshold of our tenth business year, more ripe in experience and better acquainted with your diversified requirements in our line of trade, we see even greater achievements in the future, and no efforts will be spared by us to make the next nine years bear equally as good, if not better fruit than the Strangers in the city are cordially invited to visit our establishment. Roam through it, ask questions, and make yourselves generally at home. It is a rule of the house not to urge customers to buy, so you will not be importuned.

For the benefit of strangers we add that our stock comprises general Dry Goods, Notions, Fancy Articles, etc., and no lower prices for equal qualities prevail anywhere n this or any city.

We have opened the greater portinn of our Spring Stock especially for this occasion, and strangers wishing to purchase a new dress, or a "Souvenir" of their visit to Washington, are offered ample opportunity to satisfy their de-sires in this line at our establishment. Very Respectfully,
